Clinic Basics

1. What is the full, legal name of your company?

Eumorphia LTD

2. What is the complete address for your main clinic?

Sterling House Fulbourne Road, Walthamstow, London, England, E17 4EE

3. What is your Doctor Registration Number?

7083196

4. When did your clinic officially open?

Clinic and Patient Value

1. What problems do you help solve for your patients/clients?

A range of issues mainly of cosmetic but also functional nature. I would say most of my practice is centred around breast and body plastic surgery. Breast procedures include augmentation, reduction, lift or combo surgery. Breast asymmetry also a common complaint. For men common issues include gynaecomastia. For body is mainly post weight loss or pregnancy. This includes tummy tuck, arm and thigh lift, liposuction, 3D contouring

2. How does your patient/client feel after you solve their problem?

I want to believe they feel satisfied, they have been listened to, that I offered a pragmatic treatment plan with full understanding of risks. I would want them to feel cared for, that they were the centre of attention, treatment was discrete and personal and that they received good after care.

3. Was there any unexpected value added to your patient/client's life when they received treatment or purchased your services?

I think improved quality of life, improvement in mental health some improvement in regards to functional limitations: less pain, easier to exercise, improved sexual health

4. Can you describe the typical patient journey from first contact to post-treatment follow-up?

Overall the patients are treated under the umbrella of pantheons clinic (practice I work under)

1. Enquiry via website (either mine or pantheons)
2. Consult with patient coordinator
3. 1st consultation
4. Communication with coordinator
5. 2nd consult
- 6 pre-assessment
7. Surgical day
8. Post op nurse appointment (1-2 dependent)
- 9 post op review with me
10. Further follow up as required

Services & Procedures

1. What are the main procedures or services you want to promote on the website? Please provide a list of relevant keywords.

Plastic Surgery London, breast reduction, breast augmentation, breast implants, breast reduction, breast lift, mastopexy, breast lift with implants, augmentation mastopexy, correction of breast asymmetry, gynaecomastia surgery, abdominoplasty, tummy tuck, arm lift, brachioplasty, thigh lift, liposuction, body contouring,

2. Could you please provide pricing information for these procedures/services? (Starting prices are fine if there are multiple options.)

TBC

3. What has been your most popular product/service historically?

Gynaecomastia surgery due to previous clinic collab

4. Are there any standout patient success stories or transformations you would like to highlight? (Before & after, with permission)

Yes

5. What are the most common questions or concerns patients have before visiting your clinic, and how do you address them?

Recovery from surgery
Outcomes
Risks

- addressed by offering 2 consults before surgery to thorough discuss the patient concerns
- platform used by clinic allows patients to raise their 3 biggest concerns prior to surgery and that can help shift the focus of the consultations on those 3 main questions (therefore the consult itself becomes bespoke to the concerns of the individual)

Team & Expertise

1. Can you provide more information about the lead doctor/owner of the clinic? For example, share your story, education, qualifications and experiences, along with any additional training, certifications or specialised skills.

Mr Andreas Shiatis is a UK-trained Consultant Plastic Surgeon based in London. After graduating from the University of Nottingham Medical School and studying in the USA as a Fulbright Scholar, he completed specialist Plastic Surgery training in London and an advanced microsurgery fellowship at Imperial College NHS. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons (FRCS Plast) with over 15 years' experience in Plastic Surgery.

Mr Shiatis sees private patients under the Pantheons Clinic. He specialises in aesthetic breast and body surgery, offering breast augmentation, breast reduction, breast uplift, breast implant revision, tummy tuck, liposuction, fat transfer, gynaecomastia surgery, mummy makeover, and eyelid surgery (blepharoplasty). He continually refines his practice through leading national and international education, incorporating the latest evidence-based innovations in breast and body contouring, including advanced implant technologies, internal support techniques, ultrasound-assisted liposuction, and skin-tightening technologies. His philosophy is centred on delivering elegant, natural-looking results that enhance confidence while respecting each patient's individual anatomy.

Alongside his private practice, Mr Shiatis is an NHS Consultant Plastic Surgeon at Barts NHS, specialising in microsurgical breast reconstruction and complex reconstructive surgery. He brings the same high standards of precision, safety, and patient care to every aspect of his aesthetic practice.

Beyond the operating theatre, Mr Shiatis enjoys travelling, staying active, and spending time with his family, believing that balance and wellbeing are integral to both personal and professional excellence.

2. Can you provide short bios for every staff member, along with images via Google Drive?

Not provided

3. What organisations, associations, or professional bodies are you or your team part of?

Currently GMC but planning on joining BAPRAS, BAABS and ISAPS

4. Could you share what drives your passion for your profession, what inspired you to pursue the work you do today, and the unique value you offer patients as part of their care?

My passion for this profession comes from the combination of technical precision, creativity and, above all, the human connection involved in caring for patients. My experience in complex plastic and reconstructive surgery has shaped the way I practise today in a very meaningful way. Working with patients through challenging, often life-changing circumstances taught me the importance of listening carefully, communicating honestly and understanding the person behind the procedure.

That experience has carried directly into my aesthetic practice. While the context may be different, the same principles remain central: taking time to understand what a patient is hoping to achieve, setting realistic expectations, creating trust and ensuring they feel genuinely heard throughout their care.

I believe the unique value I bring is that combination of reconstructive surgical experience, aesthetic judgement and a strong emphasis on communication and humanity. For me, aesthetic care is never simply about performing a procedure — it is about understanding why someone has come to see me, treating them as an individual, and helping them achieve a result that feels natural, considered and right for them.

Not provided

2. Can you share professional certificates, accreditations, memberships and awards, if any?

Yes

Locations & Target Market

1. What are your target locations? (Please include all suburbs, if any.)

London Surrey Sussex Hampshire Hertfordshire Kent Essex

2. How many locations do you currently have? Do you have Google My Business listings set up for these locations?

1 Fitzrovia hospital

3. Describe your ideal patient/client. Include as much detail as possible: gender, age, location, interests, and specific problems or pain points.

My ideal patient/client is primarily a woman or a man between the ages of 25 and 60 although I'm open to working with anyone who resonates with my approach. They are likely based in an urban or suburban area, is educated, professionally active, and has enough disposable income to invest in health and wellbeing. They value quality, expertise, a personalized approach.

They are often someone who appears to be functioning well from the outside—career, family, responsibilities, social life—but internally feels that something is off. They may be overwhelmed, exhausted, frustrated with their body or health, or simply tired of not feeling like themselves. They have probably already tried several things on her own: researching online, changing diet or lifestyle, seeing different practitioners, taking supplements, following wellness trends, or attempting to push through symptoms. interests are likely to include health and wellness, nutrition, fitness or movement, personal development, skincare and self-care, longevity, mindfulness, travel, healthy food, and creating a better quality of life. They tend to follow health professionals and wellness content online and appreciates evidence-based information, but can also feel overwhelmed by conflicting advice.

biggest pain points are feeling unheard, dismissed, confused, or stuck. They doesn't want another generic recommendation. They want someone who will listen carefully, look at the full picture, connect the dots, and create a plan specifically for them. They may be experiencing persistent symptoms or concerns that affect confidence, energy, mood, appearance, productivity, relationships, or ability to enjoy everyday life.

The ideal client for me is also engaged in the process. They ask questions, follows recommendations, attends appointments consistently, and is willing to make changes rather than expecting someone else to "fix" everything for her.

Competitors & Market

1. Who are your 5 biggest competitors?

1 clinics abroad
2 more budget clinics in UK: centre for surgery, signature
3 more medium - high clinics - Cadogan clinic
4 more established surgeons
5 similar partnership : eg iconic aesthetics

2. Who is the biggest brand in your niche, and what is their flagship product/service?

I'd say the Cadogan clinic : Cadogan's advantage is that it feels more like a specialist private hospital than an ordinary cosmetic clinic. It isn't trying to be cheap or procedure-specific; its product is essentially access to recognised consultants within a premium Chelsea medical environment.

Community, Content & Milestones

1. Is your clinic involved in any charities or nonprofits? If yes, please list them here.

No

2. Do you have any case studies, before/after examples, eBooks, webinars, or other content offers? If yes, please save them to our shared Google Drive.
